

What do other Alabama GCs know that you don't?

From hard-bid to negotiated, general contractors agree that technology is driving all facets of their business. Contractors from across the country look to iSqFt to assist in their preconstruction efforts to keep them on pace in an ever-changing industry.

Why did they choose iSqFt?

- To reach large groups of bidders quickly and manage them more efficiently.
- To provide all project participants with instant access to the latest project information and documents—including addenda.
- To allow their staff to spend more time with the activities that matter most—lessening 11th hour chaos on bid day.
- To realize significant cost savings over their current practices.
- To increase their visibility into preconstruction efforts allowing them to reduce risk and increase profits.

"When we recently went out for bids, we were both anxious and excited about our bid coverage possibilities. We were redefining our bid process and were unsure of how our subcontractors and suppliers would react. We were pleasantly surprised to receive over 200 qualified bids for this project on bid day without distributing paper drawings! This response demonstrates that our subcontractors and suppliers are totally on board with iSqFt and the new advancements in technology within the construction industry."
